Prsentation de l'diteurA Job Seeker in Hollywood (OhlalaLand). A Legendary Film Studio. A Parade of Whacky Characters. A Tale within a Tale. A Biofiction. A Good Deed.Stephanie wants to make her Dream Come True!Once upon a time...Baby born with teeth, starts talking to obstetrician and midwife about gestation experience! Indeed, Stephanie was born to create and tell stories like the ones that inspired her entire childhood, the stories from OhlalaLand Studios. Hoping the legendary studio will recognize her skill as a storyteller, Stephanie is one step closer today as she stands in front of the studio with a dream-job interview summons in her hands. But the experience isn't quite what she expects. OhlalaLand's interviewing process is a little unusual, a little...OhlalaLandian! A New Literary Subgenre: Job Fantasy!Have you ever had enough of emailing your rsum without ever receiving any response? If so, Stephanies story is YOUR story. Stephanie, the author, decided to take her pain and frustration and turn them into something productive: writing a fairytale about herself going for a job interview at the studio of her dreams. Since no one wants to give me a job interview, Ill create my own! So, she traded her rsum for a book! Tale of a Job Interview at OhlalaLand is a Fiction of the Author's Dream! OhlalaLand: a Land where Books and Cinema come together! Tale of a Job Interview at OhlalaLand is a short story, a tale within a tale with a parade of wacky characters where talking animals, walking buttons, and epicurean pen-people are as real as the mystical creature interviewing Stephanie. In the nest of wonder and imagination, happily ever after is not far away...or is it? Job Seeker or Not, You Need To Read This Book Because...From the imaginative mind of debut author Stephanie Batailler, Tale of a Job Interview at OhlalaLand may be a modest book by its size, but it leaves a big impression. This tale will not only entertain you but make you want to roll up your sleeves and use your imagination to get the life youve always wanted to have. This book is an inspiration, a delight to readers of all ages and backgrounds. On top of it, you'll be doing a good deed as 10 % of the authors proceeds go to the Kids Kicking Cancer organization. Praise for Stephanie Bataillers Biofiction In my years in the industry I am often asked for advice from people on how to get started how to land that first job. But Ive never come across such a creative approach as this! Ms Batailler has crafted an unexpected and wildly imaginative narrative in her quest to scale those studio walls Ron Judkins, two-time Academy Awards Winner five-time Nominee. The first rule of storytelling whether its a movie, a television show, or a book, is to create characters the audience likes and can relate to. Tale of a Job Interview does just that. H. Daniel Gross, EVP Basketball Channel. A fun and witty satire about an aspiring filmmaker. Same thing as when I step into the fighters cage: I cant wait to see how the story unfolds. Herb Dean, four-time World MMA Awards Winner. OhlalaLand stories booth was listed as the first of The must-sees at the 29th international Book and Press Fair in Geneva L'Hebdo Its a job interview gone crazy...I can assure you that the author has an overflowing imagination and I adore it! Book Plaisir Youve got to differentiate yourself. And she (the author) succeeded 100%. Le Rveil Normand (France) A modest volume by its size...but a bold approach that we believe will pay off...as for readers who are also employers, they will definitely enjoy the book, discovering that there is a new way to 'sell yourself. Born and raised in France, Stephanie Batailler spent her childhood between the French Alps and the South of France which fed her overactive imagination with great settings and inspired her to start writing fantastic tales. She graduated with a Masters degree in History from the Sorbonne University in Paris, then moved to New York where she studied Film Production. After working for ten years in the Film industry as producer, director, and camera operator, she decided to pack her bags one more time. She left in November 2011 the Big Apple for the sunny West Coast of the United States. Stephanie taught ESL to immigrants in a private school in Hollywood and then, for almost three years, worked as an international TV producer. Stephanie leaves in Los Angeles and is now pursuing a career in writing and story development in the entertainment industry in Los Angeles, California. When not writing books, scripts, or lyrics, you can find her recording songs as Skyebat, cooking, playing badminton, or hiking in Griffith Park.
