Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurOne of Kirkus s Top 100 Indie Books of 2013MADNESS, BLACKMAIL AND MURDER -- A beautiful graduate student suspects that her psychiatrist is ruled by the fantasies of a poet whos been dead for two hundred yearsA mental patient with no musical training sits down at the piano and plays a fiendishly difficult piece of classical musicA young doctors life spins out of control as he falls under the spell of three irresistible womenArt and illusion. Deception and delusion. Sex, evil and death. A mind-bending marriage of ambitious literary theory and classic murder mystery. In this intricately plotted novel, Hartman spins the familiar trappings of gothic mystery together with a fresh postmodern sensibility, producing a story thats as rich and satisfying as it is difficult to categorize. As Hartman skillfully blurs the lines between fiction and reality, the book becomes a profound meditation on art, identity and their messy spheres of influence.... An exciting, original take on the literary mystery genre. Kirkus s. Awarded the Kirkus Star for Books of Exceptional Merit Prsentation de l'diteurOne of Kirkus s Top 100 Indie Books of 2013MADNESS, BLACKMAIL AND MURDER -- A beautiful graduate student suspects that her psychiatrist is ruled by the fantasies of a poet whos been dead for two hundred yearsA mental patient with no musical training sits down at the piano and plays a fiendishly difficult piece of classical musicA young doctors life spins out of control as he falls under the spell of three irresistible womenArt and illusion.
